Origin of Name - Hurlbut

Nicknames from peculiarities of dress and its accoutrements.

From "English Surnames, Their Sources and Significations" by Chas. W. Bardsley, 1875 pp. 460-2.

"While it is English instinct to reverence authority, this authority itself has ever been distinguished by the outward manifestation of dress and emblem. The office of each was not more distinct than his outward accompaniments, and it was by the latter his precise position was known. From official this rage for badges seems to have passed on to the quieter and more ordinary avocations. The shepherd was not better known by his crook, the hunter not better known by his horn, than the pilgrim by his 'bourdon', the woodward by his 'bill', or the surveyor by his 'meteyard' or 'metewand'. How easy then for all these words to be turned into sobriquets. How natural they should become slang epithets for those who carried them. Robert Hurlebat and * * *, are evidently nicknames fastened upon certain individuals for special prowess in some of the sports of the Middle Ages, probably at some Church-ale or wakes."

Whirlbat - something swung round to give a blow; especially the cestus of Roman boxers.

Thomas Hurlbut, The Settler

According to tradition, Thos. Hurlbut was a Scotchman and born in 1610. He is supposed to have been one of the eleven male passengers who embarked at London, August 11, 1635 with his wife and female servant, in the Bachelor in company with Capt. Lyon Gardiner, (Winthrop, however, says that Gardiner sailed in a Norsey (Norway) bark, 10 July, 1635.), the English engineer employed by the Connecticut Patentees under patent issued by King Charles II, Lords Say and Seal. Brooke and others, to erect a fort at Saybrook, at the mouth of the Connecticut River. Hurlbut may have been an employe of Capt. Gardiner or a soldier under his command, at all events he was a blacksmith by trade, and was located at Saybrook with Gardiner, where he was conspicuous for coolness and bravery in the fight with the Indians when they attacked the fort there in 1637. Fortunately for Mr. Hurlbut's record, his part in that encounter was fully stated by Capt. Gardiner in his Relation of the Pequot Wars (Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll. III, third series) written at the request of Major Mason, Thos. Hurlbut, Robert Chapman and others, from memory, aided by some old papers, in June 1660 some twenty-three years after the skirmish, as follows:

"In the 22nd of February, I went out with ten men and three dogs, half a mile from the house (fort) to burn the weeds, leaves and reeds upon the neck of land because we had felled twenty timber trees, which we were to roll to the waterside to bring home, every man carrying a length of match with brimstone-matches with him to kindle the fire withal. But when we came to the small of the neck, the weeds burning, I having before this set two sentinels on the small of the neck, I called to the men that were burning the weeds to come away, but they would not until they had burnt up the rest of their matches. Presently there starts up four Indians out of the fiery reeds, but they ran away, I calling to the rest of our men to come away out of the marsh. Then Robert Chapman and Thomas Hurlbut, being sentinels, called to me saying there come a number of Indians out of the other side of the marsh. Then I went to stop them, that they should not get the woodland; but Thomas Hurlbut cried out to me that some of the men did not follow me, for Thomas Rumble and Arthur Branch threw down their two guns and ran away; then the Indians shot two of them that were in the reeds, and sought to get between us and home, but durst not come before us, but kept us in a half moon, we retreating and exchanging many a shot, so that Thomas Hurlbut was shot almost through the thigh, John Spencer in the back into his kidneys, and myself into the thigh, two more shot dead. But in our retreat, I kept Hurlbut and Spencer still before us, we defending ourselves with our naked swords, or else they had taken us all alive, so that the two sore wounded men, by our slow retreat, got home with their guns, when our two sound men ran away and left their guns behind them."

(Underwood in his history says that there were "a hundred or more" Indians in the attacking party)

"But when I saw the cowards that left us I resolved to let them draw lots which of them should be hanged, for the articles (of war or "general orders") did hang up in the hall for them to read, and they knew they had been published long before. But, at the intercession of old Mr. Mitchell (Mr. Matthew Mitchell, like Hurlbut, afterwards of Wethersfield), Mr. Higgison and Mr. Pell, I did forbear. Within a few days after I went out with eight men to get some food for our relief, and found the guns that were thrown away, and the body of one man shot through, the arrow going in at the right side, the head sticking fast, half through the rib on the left side, which I took out and cleaned it, and preserved it to send to the Bay (i.e. to friends at Boston) because they had said that the arrows of the Indians were of no force."

After the Pequot Wars, Hurlbut removed from Saybrook to Wethersfield of which he became the first established blacksmith. In the Col. Rec., we find that March 2, 1642 he was fined 40s. for encouraging others in taking excessive rates for work and ware; and probably if he practiced as he preached, he charged good prices for his own work. The fine was remitted February 5, 1643. He seems to have held a good standing in Wethersfield; appraiser of the Olsen estate 1648; was Clerk of the Train Band in 1640; Deputy to the General Court; Grand Juror and Constable in 1644; collector of taxes 1647 - W.T., V. I., p. 27; his earmark for cattle is also recorded p. 1 of same volume. In 1671, October 12 he received a grant of 120 acres of land from the General Court for his services in the Indian Wars - which, however, was not set off to him during his lifetime, being finally set off in 1694, on the petition of his grandson, John, Jr. of Middletown. His landed possessions are given in Vol. 1. p. 145, Weth. LA. Rec., III. His residence in Wethersfield issupposed to have been on the sight of the house, occupied in 1888, by Miss Harriet Mitchell, of the 6th generation. Tradition also says that that original house had a peculiar fascination for the Indians, so long as they remained in the vicinity; for whenever they were in the village they were frequently to be seen peering in curiously at the windows. According to Hurlbut Genealogy he died about 1671 but according to his deed to his son Stephen (W. L. Rec. III, 145)

he was alive May 18, 1682. His wife's name was Sarah, but defective early records of Wethersfield have preserved for us the record of birth of one only of his six sons, and no names etc., of the daughters, if there were any. Mr. Hurlbut probably died soon after the grant of land from the Colony, viz: Oct. 1671.

"The History of Ancient Wethersfield, Connecticut"

Vol. II, p. 442.
Taken from "Hurlbut Genealogy"
by Henry H. Hurlbut.

The home of the parents of our emigrant ancestor, whether in England, Scotland, or Wales, has not been revealed to us; yet it is reasonably supposed that it was somewhere upon that Island. Neither do we know the form in which those parents spelled their surname, nor indeed in what mode Thomas himself wrote the patronymic, after his arrival on this side of the Atlantic. It cannot be proven by early records, and if there were such records, the scribes of that day were often rather careless in their orthography, or at least were quaint or peculiar.

One correspondent wrote me, "I may say a word about our misspelt surname, having counted some twenty errors from Holabird to Hurlburt. The origin of the name ought to correct this. From a work by Bardsley, published in London in 1873, entitled "Our English Surnames", which you may have seen, it appears that ours belonged to the class of nicknames like Shakespeare. We are named after an old instrument of war, called a Whirl-bat. I think this can be found in Webster's Dictionary, it was an instrument held or hurled by the hand. There is no chance for a second "r", nor for omitting the "r" in the first syllable. I think we came of a fighter, one who never gave up when in the right, without a fight".

The spelling, Holsbert, common on Wethersfield Records, suggests the possible correctness of an idea that the name is an abbreviation of what was formerly Haliburton.

"The Hurlbut Genealogy or Record of the Descendants of Thomas Hurlbut, of Saybrook and Wethersfield, Connecticut, who came to America as early as 1637."

by Henry H. Hurlbut, 1888

Hurlbut, Thomas the Settler, was in Wethersfield, 1637 (?) and served bravely in the Pequot campaign of that year for which he received from the General Court 300 acres land; his homestead record 14, March, 1647 was a home, barn and 3 acres land bound E. by Bell Lane, S. by land of Ab'm Elsen, W. & N. by homestead of Mr. Robert Parke, It was formerly the homestead of Jasper Rawlings. Hurlbut was a blacksmith especially in nail-making; collector 1647; in 1662 the Town gave him land "to set a shop and a little home on",; in 1660 the Town gave him 80 acres land at Nayaug and, in same year he exchanged homesteads with Lieut. John Hollister (who had several) taking one adjacent his old one; in 1669 the Town gave him a small piece next N. of Henry Buck's, at the Common, W. of High St., he died after 1677.

"Early inhabitants of Wethersfield with notes on their land holdings, based upon the manuscript collections of Judge Sherman W. Adams." "Ancient Wethersfield", Vol. I, p. 280.

The following paragraphs were taken from "The History of Ancient Wethersfield" by Adams and Stiles.

The name of Thomas Hurlbut appears among: "The following are the names of additional settlers, nearly all from places other than Watertown; some directly from England; most of them came between 1636 and 1640, none later than 1645." (Vol. I, p. 30).

List of persons to whom land was granted by the town:-

"Thomas Hurlbut, land for a shop - 1661-2"
(Vol. I, p. 40).

The freeman was one who (above the age of 16) had taken the oath of fidelity, on presentation of a certificate of good behavior from the town. "Freeman" also "Inhabitant" corresponds to our term "elector". The name of Thomas Hurlbut appears on the list of freeman as returned in Oct. 1669. (Vol. I. p. 42).

"Thomas Hurlbut may not have been a stated settler at Wethersfield, Connecticut, at this date, nor prior to 1638. He was in the Saybrook garrison, a brave and valuable soldier and was there seriously wounded February 22, 1637. But he must have removed to Wethersfield shortly after, probably in company with Mr. Matthew Mitchell who suffered great hardships and losses at Saybrook from the Indians. Hurlbut at all events, received a special grant of three hundred acres, west of Mt. Lamentation, from the General Court, in consideration of his services in Indian campaigns. (Vol. I, p. 73)

In speaking of the Pequot campaign of 1637 in which Thomas Hurlbut is thought to have taken part:

"These soldiers were absent from home about three weeks and two days and received (reckoning 6 days to the week) 1s. 2d. per day; sergeants 20d. and lieutenants 20s. per week; the captain 40s. per week, and each man subsequently received a large grant of land."

"Blacksmiths" - A "smithy" was in early time, a much more important establishment than now. Until a comparatively recent date, not only were axes, chisels, spades and other tools wrought by hand, at the blacksmiths forge and anvil; but even nails, spikes, bolts, etc., were made in like manner. Even slitting-mills (for preparing nailrods and other iron bars) were unknown in Connecticut until 1716. Among the earliest blacksmiths in Wethersfield were Henry Buck and Thomas Hurlbut". (Vol. I, p. 645).

"In 1672, Stephen Chester exchanged this piece (of land), at the request of the town, for another 'at the north-east side of that wch hee, the sd Chester, bought of Tho. Hurlbutt.' " (Vol. I, p. 130)

Thos Hurlbut was
Constable in 1644
Collector of taxes 1647
Clerk of train band 1640
Deputy to General Court
Grand Juror Ref. Anc. Meth

Record of Thomas Hurlbut and some of his direct descendants as taken from "The Hurlbut Genealogy" by Henry H. Hurlbut (the numbers are those used in the Genealogy)

1. Thomas born 1610 Scotland, died 1671 Wethersfield, Conn. The Christian name of the wife of Mr. Hurlbut was Sarah, but nothing further is known; no date of birth, marriage, nor death. The dates of birth of five of their six sons are missing; whether there were any daughters or not, is not known. During the contention that existed in the church of Wethersfield, the early records of both the Town and Church, it is understood, disappeared.

Children - probably born in Wethersfield, Conn.
2. Thomas, Jr.
3. John, b. March 8, 1642
4. Samuel
5. Joseph
6. Stephen
7. Cornelius

6. Stephen was born (probably in Wethersfield, Conn., about 1649). According to Mr. Edwin Stearns, Genealogist, he married Dec. 12, 1678, Dorothy ---, but as by Hinman, (Gen. Reg. vol. 18, p. 58) he married on that day Phebe ---. He seems to have been twice married. It is believed that he was a mechanic. The town of Wethersfield granted Stephen Hurlbut Feb. 23, 1694, "a piece of land eight feet in breadth, 70 feet in length, flanking upon his own Lot next his house to set a shop upon." We find no record of the death of Mr. Hurlbut, nor of either of his wives' death.

43. Joseph was born in Wethersfield, Conn., July 10, 1683. He was a farmer and settled in Newington Society in the town of Wethersfield, Conn. Married April 27, 1704 Sybil Fitch, daughter of Thomas and Abigail Fitch of Wethersfield. Joseph and his wife were members of the Newington Church in 1747. He died June 24, 1752 and was buried in Newington church burying ground, where the monument and inscription could be seen a few years since. Mrs. Hurlbut died before her husband but the date is not learned.

174 Joseph, Jr., was born in Wethersfield, Conn., June 10, 1710; baptized same month - He married January 8, 1736, Hannah Wells of Wethersfield in which town he settled. It was no doubt an error of our correspondent, when he said this was the "Joseph Hollibert" whose father died when he was 15 years old, and who chose James Rogers, of New London, his guardian. He was a member of Newington Church in 1747. In 1772, he purchased a farm of Thomas Seymour, in Hartford (West Hartford Soc.) cornering on Farmington and Wethersfield lines where several of his sons settled. He died Dec. 5, 1790.

Levi and his wife owned baptismal covenant in Newington church Dec. 27, 1767; both joined same church April 2, 1780. Levi and his second wife were members when Rev. J. Brace began his 50 years pastorate in 1805. His father "from love and affection" gave Levi in 1785, part of his homestead, etc., which was located in West Hartford Soc., adjoining Newington Soc., Wethersfield and in 1790, sold his brother

Joseph, 21 acres of this land adjoining the farm of his brother Christopher. Mrs. Hurlbut died 1787, and he married (2) in 1788 or 9, Martha Wells of Newington Soc., daughter of Samuel Wells. She died of consumption May 18, 1808, aged 63 years. He married (3) in Newington Soc., July 30, 1809, Lois Johnson of West Hartford, Conn. She joined the church of Newington Soc., May 5, 1816. Wethersfield (Conn.) Cemetery

Located nearly in the center of the present village of Wethersfield, and directly in the rear of the old First Church edifice, there rises above the low surrounding country, to an elevation of perhaps twenty feet, a nearly circular sandhill in the midst of a large tract of heavy loam. Proofs are not wanting that this hill was originally a burial-mound of the aborigines of the country. Tradition also tells us that before the advent of the white man the river rose to an unprecedented height, forcing the local inhabitants to encamp upon its summit for a period of several days, who suffered much inconvenience meantime for lack of food; and from henceforth it was known in local nomenclature as "Hungry Hill" --- a name fraught with meaning to this day. And nowhere in New England can a more beautiful natural location be found for the interment of loved friends, commanding as it does a wonderful prospect of the "Great River" winding for miles through its fertile meadows, with the uplands of Glastonbury in the background. Here, near the little log church, the fathers of the town were laid to rest, and to-day this cemetery, with its subsequent enlargements is the only one in the present township. It originally embraced the eastern and a part of the western declivity.

The entire area of the cemetery to-day is nearly five and three-quarters acres, containing some 1500 monuments. The earliest stone extant is that of Leonard Chester, who died in 1648, although there were several burials previous to his. But two other stones erected prior to 1700 remain to-day, those of Capt. John Chester, who died February 23, 1697, and Mrs. Sarah Chester, who died Dec. 12, 1698.

Probably in but few of the burying-grounds of New England are the older stones in a better state of preservation than in the old cemetery at Wethersfield. This is unquestionably due to the sandy nature of the soil, as well as to the fact that few trees have existed to collect those enemies of sandstone and marble, dampness and the consequent mould.

Newington Cemetery

In May 1713, the Second or West, parish of Wethersfield was incorporated, although the church was not organized until Oct. 17, 1722. The inhabitants of this society continued to use the common burying-ground until on March 17, 1726, upon their petition, the town of Wethersfield granted them, "one acre of Land for a Burying place near their Meeting house or Elsewhere in the half mile Common and to be Laid of by Deacon Jabez Whittlesey, Deacon John Deming, and Richard Bordman, who shall bound out the same by sufficient Monuments and Record it to sd society".

The first settlers of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield came from the towns of Newton, Dorchester and Watertown in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.

At General Court in the Massachusetts Bay colony at Boston May 14th, 1634, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, the settlers of Wethersfield received leave to move from Massachusetts Bay colony.

See "Centennial of Newington Church," 1876.

This will enable the descendants of these settlers to gain admission to Codfish or Back Bay Colony.

Samuel Boardman was born at Banbury, England; married at Claydon, England; settled at Ipswich, Mass. and was a landowner in 1639; moved to Wethersfield in 1640; was Deputy to General Court 18 times (30 years); Custom Master; Grand Juror; Sealer of Weights and Measures; Selectman; and leading man in colony. He died at Wethersfield.

See "Ancient Wetherfield", page 110.

Boardman, (different forms of spelling Borman, Boreman, Bordman, Boardman). The exhaustive and admirable Boardman Genealogy says that the American family descends from the Boremans and that the name Bordman or Boardman was "from the first entirely distinct from Boreman, and has an altogether different derivation * * * . Curiously and unaccountably, the descendants both of Thomas Boreman of Ipswich, Mass. and of Samuel Boreman of Wethersfield, having at first generally employed the spelling Borman, by inserting, after a few generations, the "d", and sometimes later the "a" gradually changed their name to its present form, and so made it not only different from the one by which their ancestors were called but identical with that of an entirely distinct family. This change from Boreman or Borman to Boardman, first appears in the Wethersfield line in the record of Richard of Newington 1707 nearly 70 years after the first appearance of Samuel Boreman in New England. The new form was adopted by most of the family in Wethersfield, till 1780, when the "a" is first added in the record of Elijah, son of Israel of Newington". The plan adopted by the author of the Genealogy referred to, is to give to the first two generations, the name Boreman, to the third and fourth, Bordman, and Boardman to the remainder.

The English ancestry of Samuel, the Wethersfield settler, is traced as follows - from (1) William Boreman, of Banbury, Oxfordshire, 1525; (2) Thomas, the Elder of Claydon, 1546, died 1579; (3) Thomas, the Younger, of Claydon, married Dorothy Gregory, 1580; (4) Christopher of Claydon, born 1581, died 1640, married Julian (daughter of Felix) Carter; (5) Samuel, baptized Banbury, Oxfordshire, England 20 Aug. 1615, came early to Wethersfield (from Ipswich, Mass. where his name first appears on record 1639). But the Boardman Genealogy makes it quite clear that his removal to Wethersfield was in 1641 and intimates a possibility that his wife Mary Betts, whose mother was "the widoe" Betts of Hartford, "school dame" in that town may have been a second wife married at Hartford, his first having died at Ipswich. His wife was Mary (daughter of John and Mary) Betts of Claydon, Oxfordshire, England from which place they undoubtedly emigrated to America - as William Boardman (6th in generation from the Settler) had in his possession a letter written from that place in 1641, to Samuel Bordman from his mother; of which the following is a copy from the original in possession of Mr. William F. J. Boardman of Hartford, Conn.:

> "Good sonne. I have received yor letter, whereby I understand that you are in good health, for wch. I give God thankes, as we are all, praysed be God for the same: whereas yor desire is to see yor brother Christopher with you he is not provided for so great a Journey, neither doe I think that he dare take uppon him so dangerous a voyage. 9. REV. THOMAS HOOKER

9. REV. THOMAS HOOKER, born in England about 1586, entered Emanuel College, Cambridge, in 1604. He received the degree of B.A. in 1608, the degree of M.A. in 1611 and, entering upon a divinity course, he was elected a Fellow of the College. He left the College before completing the first course and receiving the degree of B.D. There are many reasons for supposing that he went from the College direct to Chelmsford and remained there until being silenced, arrested and placed under bonds to appear before the Ecclesiastical Court. He fled to Holland, and in 1633 came to New England on the ship "Griffin", coming to Boston where he was a freeman in 1634. He was elected Pastor of the Eighth Church at Newton, Mass., and removed with his congregation and family to Hartford, Conn., in 1636, of which he was the founder, and where he died 7 July 1647, aged 61 years. He left a Will, not dated. His inventory, taken 21 April 1649, amounted to L 1136.

The name of his first wife is not recorded.

He married second Susanna Garbrand.

Her grandfather

11. GARBRAND HARKES was born in Holland about 1510. In youth he learned the stationer's trade, which then included the arts of a scribe, limner, binder and printer, as well as the business of a dealer in books, manuscripts and parchments. Having become a Protestant, he fled from persecution in his native country and settled in the Parish of St. Mary Magdalen in the City of Oxford, England. In 1539 he was presented for eating flesh during Lent without license. He was soon employed in his trade at the University, as he was binding books in the library of Magdalen College as early as 1542. In a subsidy roll of Oxford of the 35th of King Henry VIII (1543) "Garbrand Harks alyen" in the Southeast Ward was assessed 20d on goods rated at L 5. He soon afterward became naturalised, as in the subsidy roll of the 1st of King Edward VI (1546) he appeared at the same place, but not listed among the aliens, and was assessed 15 d. on goods rated at L 15. He became prosperous and acquired a comfortable fortune.

He married about 1538 Elizabeth, a native of Holland, and died between 1592 and 1598. He left a Will, which has disappeared.

Eight children were born to Garbrand and Elizabeth, four sons and four daughters, of whom the eldest, Rev. John, died without issue, and Elizabeth, born about 1545, was married to Rev. William Paynter, and Christian became the wife of the Rev. Dr. Robert Chaloner of Amersham, co. Bucks.

Another of the sons

10. Richard Garbrand, alias Harkes or Hakes, was born at Oxford about 1550. His three brothers and the husbands of his four sisters were all graduates of the University of Oxford, but he learned the stationer's trade under his father, and on 5 December 1573, was admitted as a bookseller of Oxford, succeeding his brother John in the paternal bookshop. From the business and from the bequests of his brother John he acquired a large estate. He married about 1578 Anne, perhaps sister of John Ferrar. His Will is dated 19 January 1601/2, and he died probably in 1602. His wife Anne was buried in St. Mary Magdalen Church, Oxford, 18 October 1609. She left a Will. Among their eleven children were the Rev. Toby Garbrand and the Rev. Nicholas Garbrand, clergymen of the Church of England; John, Fellow of New College, Oxford, who succeeded to the bookshop on the death of his mother;

and their sister

9. Susan (Susanna) Garbrand, born about 1593, who was about nine years old when her father died and sixteen years old when her mother departed this life. She seems to have lived in the household of one of her aunts, probably with the wife of the Rev. Dr. Robert Chaloner, at Amersham, co. Bucks, as it was there, 3 April 1621, that she was married to Thomas Hooker. It was into such a clerical and educated family that Mr. Hooker came by marriage.

About 1620 he obtained the rectorship of the small parish of Esher in Surrey, a living in the donation of Mr. Francis Drake, and appears to have been domestic chaplain as well. Mrs. Drake was a hypochrondriac invalid, living in fear that she had committed the unpardonable sin. Hooker's ministrations afforded her considerable comfort and relief. Here Mr. Hooker feel in love with Susan Garbrand, who is described as "Mrs. Drake's waiting gentlewoman."

In the month of June in 1631, Mr. Hooker fled from persecution in Holland, leaving hurriedly and secretly. Some time later, in the same summer, Mrs.Hooker sent a trunk to her husband in Holland on the ship Jacob. The trunk failed to reach its destination. In the autumn of 1631, Mrs. Hooker brought suit against the owners of the Jacob, to recover its value. In the deposition is given, beside a description of the clothing contained in the trunk, the following information concerning Hooker: "And he also sayeth that the sayd Hooker was born at Barstall (now Birstall) in the county of Leicester and is a natural subject of of the King of England and went into Holland in or about the month of June last, and his wife and family still dwell within the parish of Waltham in Essex."

Mrs. Hooker followed her husband to New England and survived him.

She was married second to Elder William Goodwin of Hartford and Hadley, and died at the home of her son Rev. Samuel Hooker at Farmington, 17 May 1676, aged about 84 years.

Rev. Thomas Hooker had six children, perhaps all born in England.

By his first wife he had:

(a) Joanna Hooker, born about 1615, married 1640 to Rev. Thomas Shepard.
(b) Mary Hooker, married 1644 to Rev. Roger Newton.

By his second wife he had:

(c) John Hooker, born in England about 1626, died at Haseworth, co.Bucks,Eng.1684.
(d) Sarah Hooker, born at Little Baddow, a suburb of Chelmsford,Co. Essex, England, 1628, died there 1629.
(e) Sarah Hooker, born at Little Baddow about 1629, married about 1648 to Rev. John Wilson,Jr.

8. (f) Rev. Samuel Hooker, born 1633, perhaps in England but more likely at Newtowne (Cambridge), Mass., became a minister at Farmington, Conn. and died there 6 November 1697. He was appointed Commissioner of Conn. General Court to treat with New Haven Colony October 1662, and was appointed by the Governor's Council to go(Page713 with Major Treat's forces to Hadley and Northampton 9 March 1675/6. He married Mary, died 24 June 1712, daughter of Capt. Thomas Willet, who succeeded Capt.Miles Standish in command of the famous military company of Plymouth and afterward became the first Mayor of the City of New York.

Of their eleven children:

7. John Hooker, born at Farmington 20 February 1664/5, was for many years the leading man of the town, being Deputy for Farmington to the Conn.Gen. Court at intervals from 1699 to 1733, Asst. to Conn.Colony at intervals from 1723 to 1733, member of Governor's Council from 1723 to 1727, Captain of the Farmington Trainband 1714. He was on important committees and frequently sent to settle difficulties in towns and churches. He built his house on the west side of the Main Street, some distance north of the Meeting House at Farmington, under the branches of a beautiful, wide spreading elm tree, known far and wide as the "Hooker Elm." His home soon became a center of generous hospitality and familiar gather place for the sages of the town. He died at Farmington 21 Feb. 1745/6.

He married 24 November 1687, Abigail Stanley, born at Farmington 25 July 1669, died there 21 February 1742/3, daughter of Capt. John Stanley and his second wife Sarah Fletcher. The eldest of their ten children was

6. Hezekiah Hooker. (For further information see Part IV Wurts'Magna Charta.)

Here lies the Peerless Paragon of Fame
Whose true deserts to show requires a shrine
Proceeding from a Helliconian Braine
Both grace and beauty in her face did shine
Enthroned in majesty almost devine
Which mixt with mildness did the more advanced
The lovely splendor of her countenance
Had she lived in days of yore when such
Who neer exceld in virtue half so much
She would have been above them set on high
And been adored as a dietie
Yea Venus, Pallas and the Greaces
Compared with her should all have lost their places
And all those temples for them richly stated
Should to her honor have been dedicated
But now she's Paradised Triumphantly
Where she shall lie unto eternity.

LAST OF HOOKER LINE MAY SELL BIBLE OF FAMED REV. THOMAS

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 27. - (AP) - Valued by its present owner at $250,000 to $500,000, the famous Bible of Rev. Thomas Hooker, founder of Hartford, soon may be for sale.

For eight generations the 353 year-old volume has been hanied down from father to son. Now it is owned by Edward Eugene Hooker, jr., 72, of Mount Pocono, Pa., who with his sister, Mary, 76, is the last of his line. Neither ever married.

"I feel the time has arrived to decide how I shall dispose of the Bible", Hooker explained during a visit here. "I have thought of willing the book to another line of the family, but as this would dissociate the Bible with the Hooker name, I am reluctant to follow this procedure."

The Bible is intact except for the title page of the Old Testament, all of Genesis and part of Exodus. These portions were found missing after the Bible was loaned for an exhibit many years ago.

The title page of the New Testament shows the Bible was "imprinted at London by Christopher Barker, printer to the Queenes Most Excellent Majestie, 1582". There are no records to show how Thomas Hooker acquired it.

In a section reserved for the family record appears in ink a terse biography of Thomas Hooker, whose sermon of May 31, 1638, is credited with inspiring the fundamental orders of the Connecticut colony. Some historians regard that document as the earliest written constitution in history.

Alice Tomes became the first wife of Thomas Welles, afterward fourth Governor of Connecticut. He was the son of Robert, son of Thomas, and was born in England in 1598. They were married soon after 5 July 1615 and with their six children came in the "Susan and Ellen" in 1635. He owned a share of the Hilton lands in New Hampshire, and was first in Boston, then went to Saybrook in 1636, and settled in Hartford in 1637. He was magistrate and treasurer of the Colony; secretary and commissioner of the United Colonies; elected governor in 1655 and 1658, and was deputy governor for several years. He removed to Wethersfield in 1646 and owned land on a part of which the Connecticut State Prison now stands.

Governor Welles died suddenly 14 January 1659/60, "being very well at supper and dead before midnight." His will dated 7 November 1659 was probated 11April 1660. His wife Alice died in Connecticut, perhaps about 1640. Their six children, all born in England, were:

(a) Ann Welles, born about 1619, married (1) to Thomas Thomson and (2) to Anthony Hawkins.
(b) John Welles, born 1621, married Elizabeth Curtis.
(c) Mary Welles, died before 7 November 1659, leaving issue.
(d) Thomas Welles, born 1627, married Hannah Tuttle.
(e) Capt. Samuel Welles, born 1630, married (1) Elizabeth Hollister and (2) Hannah Lamberton.
(f) Sarah Welles, born 1635, married Capt. John Chester, of whom later.

Mrs. Veon -

Here is the story about King Cadwallader. I was happy to look it up for you.

Genie Preston-Cadwallader, sometimes written Cadwaladr Vandigaid. Surnamed "The Blessed". King of the Britons. Died about 664.

He was the son of Cadwallon, King of Gwynedd (Wales, I think) whom he succeeded in 634.

He obtained great fame by the heroic exploits which he performed in the defense of Wales against the Saxons and holds a high place in Welsh tradition & poetry. According to the prophecy of Merlin he is one day to return to the world to expel the Saxon from the land. He came in time to be regarded as a saint (hence his surname - "The Blessed").
